

2018 Hardrock Hundred Mile Endurance Run Press Release

Tackling one of the world's most challenging and demanding individual sporting events 100 miles, 66,000 feet of climb and descent, 48 hours to finish
Surviving to finish the ultimate test of endurance sports

This is the essence of the Hardrock Hundred Endurance Run

For Immediate Release

After consulting with various stakeholders including community members, the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Forest Service, and members of the Hardrock run committee, Hardrock Hundred Run Director Dale Garland announced today that the 2018 Hardrock Hundred will be held as planned on July 20th – 22nd, 2018 on the published Hardrock clockwise course.

"I want to thank the entire Hardrock community for your patience, understanding and support as we worked through the impacts of the 416 and Burro fires as they related to this year's Hardrock," said Garland. He then added, "We're excited that we will be able to have everybody join us for this year's Hardrock as we celebrate our silver running!"
