The Hardrock Hundred Mile Endurance Run is proud to announce that Chloe Schulman has joined the Hardrock Hundred run committee as our new partnership coordinator.

“Chloe brings an extensive amount of outdoor industry experience and organization with her but more importantly, it was clear from our conversations and her letter of interest that she “gets” Hardrock and what Hardrock means to people,” said Dale Garland, Run Director of the Hardrock Hundred Mile Endurance Run.

“Being a member of the iconic Hardrock Hundred Endurance Run and in this role is particularly important to me. As someone who watched trail running go from a small, grassroots sport to a global reach with countless followers, it is important to me to ensure that the true meaning of the sport remains. I am excited to help sustain Hardrock’s grassroots identity while securing the support it needs to keep thriving.” added Chloe.

About The Hardrock Hundred Mile Endurance Run

Every July the Hardrock Hundred Endurance Run is held in the scenic, yet rugged San Juan Mountains of SW Colorado. Beginning in 1992, the Hardrock Hundred Endurance Run remains to this day, dedicated to the memory of those hardrock miners who made their living within the San Juan Mountains and connects the historic mining towns of Silverton, Ouray, Telluride and Lake City. The Hardrock Hundred Mile Endurance Run is an ultramarathon of 102.5 miles in length, plus 33,992 feet of climb and 33,992 feet of descent for a total elevation change of 67,984 feet, at an average elevation of over 11,000 feet. The race is held on a loop course on 4WD roads, dirt trails, and cross country in Southern Colorado's San Juan Range, USA. This course offers a graduate level challenge for endurance runs. The course is designed to provide extreme challenges in altitude, steepness, and remoteness. Mountaineering, wilderness survival and wilderness navigation skills are as important in this event as your endurance.
